District-Attorney Denies Any Suit Involving the Vanderbilt Lines.

A news dispatch under an Asheville date line appeared last Thursday saying that District-Attorney A. E. Holton had begun a suit in the United States Court claiming title to all of the extreme western portion of North Carolina, including the greater part of eight counties, many towns and villages, a portion of four railroads, the Toxaway hotels and property and the greatest part of George W. Vanderbilt's Pisgah forests.

A representative of the Daily Industrial News called the dispatch to the attention of District-Attorney Holton yesferday afternoon. Mr. Holton said there is absolutely no truth to the story. The whole matter started, he added, from a suit brought about six weeks ago in the District Court at Asheville to eject the Hiewassee Lumber Company and a man by the name of Brown, from a 5,000-acre tract of land in Clay county belonging to the United States. District-Attorney Holton says that this tract is no part of the lands described in the fake story from Asheville. It is a tract which fell into the possession of the United States years ago as a result of a case of the United States against one Olmsted, an official of the government. It is alleged that the jumber company and Brown have built a cabin upon the land in order to claim and maintain adverse possession. Fake stories similar to this have appeared in Northern papers herectore, and i teems that these publications when the mountain section of North Carolina is involved. Only a few weeks ago a Chicago paper contained a half-page story under a Greensboro date line about the "clay eaters of the mountains of North Carolina." try the wise administering of coal tar preparations has aided to a great extent, and drenching with calcium chloride has shown that the rust can be kept at a minimum.

Those methods, however, are not perfect solutions of the vast problem of road maintenance and dust suppression. They are merely palliatives, and while they are being advocated in such sections of the country as will be immediately benefited, the bigger problem of discovering an absolute antidots for the action of the automobile is occupying the ottention of scientists on both sides of the Atlantic. The sciution of that problem may be given at the big congress at Paris in the fail, or it may be discovered before; possibly on this side of the Western occan, possibly in the lands where gool roads were known when America was in its swaddling clothes.
